- ✓ Automating the workflow prevents delays in patient care and minimizes "lost" studies by making relevant information available at the point of care and ensuring studies are accurately tracked throughout the process.
- ✓ Integrating each phase of the imaging life cycle results in significant cost savings without reduced functionality.

The RadFlow Integration Solution from Essential Enterprise Solutions, Inc. (EESI) allows practices of all sizes to fully realize the benefits of going "digital" by facilitating seamless communication between individual systems to acquire, store, retrieve, display and distribute imaging studies quickly, accurately and efficiently. EESI's imaging experts will take the time to review and analyze your existing systems and workflow to understand the capabilities within your current environment. Once the analysis is complete, EESI will deliver a comprehensive proposal outlining the elements required to deliver a seamless integration, any dependencies, the time frame and costs associated with the integration, and the final solution. The RadFlow Integration Solution designed by EESI will utilize IHE's HL7 and DICOM frameworks for image information management and integration to help you improve patient care while keeping operational costs under control. Finally, EESI will perform the system integration and testing to ensure proper functionality.
